THE MEDIA OF EXCHANGE OF OUR “PENAL INSTITUTIONS”

Modern American criminal rehabilitation theory holds that convicts and cash do not mix. An inordinate lust for money landed many of the prisoners behind bars in the first place, and the use of cash inside the walls contributes to escapes, corruption and the proliferation of criminal activities among inmates.

A convict with legal tender United States cash in his possession can bribe correctional officers for special treatment; can feed, transport and even arm himself in the event of an escape; can participate in gambling — a major cause of inmate turmoil; can purchase contraband and “favors” from other inmates and is a potential victim for extortion by prisoners or guards.

There are legitimate uses of some type of currency system in prison, however. Most penal institutions allow inmates to purchase from a commissary or canteen such items as tobacco, personal toilet articles, reading material, hobby supplies, snack food, etc.

Therefore, there is a need to establish some type of currency system that will allow the inmates the lawful uses of money while denying them the illicit benefits.

As far back as the early 1800s, European prisons and workhouses had begun the use of token coinage systems for inmates. It was a full century later, however, before any American penitentiary adopted a prison token system. Throughout the 20th Century, a number of currency substitutes have evolved for use in penitentiaries, reformatories, county and city jails, prison farms, work camps, criminal hospitals and other places of incarceration. Some of these convict currencies have met with more success than others. The use of tokens in prison is now nearly obsolete, having been precluded by use of coupons, punch cards and various charge systems that completely eliminate a circulating medium of exchange.

This catalog is intended for use by exnumists rather than penologists, so its focus will be upon the currency substitutes themselves rather than the prisons where they are used or the inmates that use them. A few words, however, are appropriate to give the collector an idea of how each currency substitute system operates, as an aid to understanding the items commonly encountered and cataloged herein.

TOKENS: Although they were the first widely used convict currency, tokens provide the inmate with a circulating medium of exchange that does not completely eliminate the problems caused by a cash system. True, tokens present an obstacle to bribery of correctional officers and hinder escape; but, they can still be used among inmates for gambling, illegal purchases and extortion.

In general, the operation of a prison token system is as follows: Any money an inmate brings with him at the beginning of his sentence, or receives while in prison as gifts from the outside or pay for work done in the penitentiary is credited to his account. From that account, the inmate is allowed to draw tokens for his personal use in the canteen, commissary, etc. A limit is often placed on the amount of tokens an inmate may draw — say, $10 a week or $50 a month. In addition, many institutions also limit the amount an inmate may have in his possession at one time; any excess considered contraband and subject to confiscation.

These tokens, then, are a true circulating coinage — both legally and illegally — within the prison of issue.

The collector of prison tokens will find them issued in denominations of 1¢ through $5, with the most common denominations 1¢, 5¢, 10¢, 25¢, 50¢, $1 and $5, corresponding to the U.S. coinage system. Metallic compositions encountered will include aluminum, brass or bronze, nickel alloy and various white metals. Prison tokens have also been issued in fibre and more recently in plastic. Also included under token systems would be the canvas and paper currencies issued by Nevada State Prison and New York's Sing Sing, respectively.

Certain institutions have issued tokens which carry no denomination. These are generally sold at fluctuating prices and are used for the purchase of a specific item. For example, a number of prisons have such tokens that are used in soda and ice cream vending machines.

COUPONS: One of the most effective substitute currencies now used in American prisons is the coupon book. Issued in denominations of 50¢ to $50, depending on the prison of issue, the booklets are made up of perforated coupons in a wide variety of denominations from 1¢ to $1.

Like the token system, money-credited to an inmate's account may be withdrawn in the form of coupon books. Unlike the tokens, however, the coupon books and individual coupons are not a circulating exchange medium. Nearly all coupon books are printed with a serial number that is repeated on each of the coupons therein. Additionally, coupons and books are not transferable, nor are the coupons valid if detached from the book. When making a purchase from the commissary, the inmate must present the clerk with the entire book and the clerk removes and retains the necessary coupons for the purchase. Used individual coupons are generally perforation-cancelled, the condition in which most of them reach collectors hands.

In an attempt to obviate counterfeiting problems, since many penitentiaries print the coupons which are used there, the coupon books are often issued with a date beyond which the coupons are no longer valid. Color of paper for each denomination is also changed occasionally to combat fakery. Also included with the coupons are numbered tickets, much like movie tickets. These are used in much the same way as the non-denomination tokens, for purchase of a specific item.

Most of the books that are printed commercially are done by either the Southern Coupon Co., Birmingham, Ala. or Allison Coupon Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

PUNCH CARDS: Operating on basically the same principle as coupon books are punch cards. Money is withdrawn from an inmate's account in the form of a card

This $20 coupon book from Texas' Huntsville State Penitentiary is typical of one of the most widely used systems of inmate currency substitutes in American prisons today.

Another type of non-circulating prison exchange medium is represented by this Canteen Pass Book from the Wisconsin State Prison. It is issued to an inmate in a specific amount, and purchases are deducted from it until it is worthless.

of specified value. That value comprises the total of the several denominations printed around the border of the card. Thus, a $2 punch card might be made up of four 25¢ impressions, four 10¢ impressions, ten 5¢ impressions and ten 1¢ impressions. Upon purchase of a candy bar at the canteen, for example, an inmate would present the card and the clerk would punch a hole through one each of the 10¢ and 5¢ impressions. When all of the individual denominations have been punched out of the card, it is worthless.

Like the coupon books, most punch cards are serial numbered and carry the name of the inmate to whom it was issued. There are some prisons that even go as far as to have the thumb print of the inmate on the card, where it is matched at the time of purchase. They are not transferable.

CHARGE SYSTEMS: Although not of much interest to exonomists since no substitute currency is used, a few words on inmate charge accounting systems will be presented to show the collector an alternative to cash substitutes that is being used in many institutions.

Called a variety of names such as Inmate Money Transfer, Personal Fund Withdrawal Requisition, Prison Store Record, etc., these personal charge accounts are used to transfer an inmate's funds directly from his personal account to the commissary or other supplier of goods and services purchased by the inmate. No medium of exchange is involved, and aside from the bookkeeping required, this is considered the most desirable manner for handling prisoners' finances.

There are many other types of paper accounting systems that are utilized, such as Ledger cards, a ledger kept by the commissary clerk which is signed each time by the inmate, and the Register Tape method, where the inmate will sign the register tape upon each purchase.

RELATED ITEMS: While collecting prison exonomia, you will find that there are many more items to collect than just tokens, medals and scrip, which we shall call related items.

When speaking at meetings or exhibiting your collection for others to share, it is a lot more interesting when displayed along with the other items of exonomia that are prison related.

Over the years co-author Jerry Zara has managed to assemble many different items that are used on inmate and correctional officers' uniforms, such as buttons, insignia items, chevron patches, buckles, badges, collar items and cap shields. His collection even has an authentic uniform that was used on the Georgia "chain-gang," which is displayed dressed on a manikin.

A good way of gathering information concerning the numerous institutions that we have in the United States is to collect picture post cards. An enormous amount of information can be obtained from these cards. In Zara's collection there are over 600 different cards.

One can also assemble a collection of medals and bars or ingots that are prison related, as are shown here.

Zara's collection also includes weapons that were confiscated from the inmates, as well as some very nice art work. Inmates have the time to make some very nice items, that are generally sold in the prison gift shop. Most prisons will have a shop that visitors can stop at to purchase these art works. The money received from the sale goes to the inmate; of course he will not get the cash, his account will be credited.

Though you may not find them in your local library, there are many books that can be found that will help you with the research of penal institutions.

Zara has over two dozen hard cover books authored and signed by the prison officials of their time. Most relate their tour of duty and experiences, which make very interesting reading material. There are also many books around that have been authored by inmates, concerning their time spent in prisons.

A great way of obtaining information right from the horse's mouth, so to speak, would be to write to the prisoners themselves. Much of the information found in this catalog has been obtained from this source.

The route of prison exonomia is broad, very broad, and there is a wealth of information out there. One must devote many hours and sometimes come up empty, but that's half the fun, and that's why collecting items of prison exonomia is so interesting.

USING THIS CATALOG

Every reasonable effort has been expended in the preparation of this catalog to list all known items of substitute currencies used in prisons in the United States. Naturally in a field this broad, absolute completeness can never be achieved. Older issues, previously unknown to collectors, will continue to turn up from time to time, and, although the use of tokens and scrip in prisons is becoming obsolete, there may be new issues in the future.

It is hoped that readers who have in their collections items of interest which have not been included in this catalog will contact the authors, so that the information can be included in any updating work which may be accomplished in the future.

In preparing this catalog, principal consideration was given to clarity and ease of use. By arranging all pieces under the state where issued a reader desiring to know what type of prison currency was issued in any state has only to turn to that state and he will find pictures and descriptions of all known prison items. Hundreds of photographs illustrate nearly all of the major type prison issues.

All listings in this catalog follow the same general pattern. Each piece is designated by the catalog number which consists of the two-letter postal abbreviation for the state of issue and a number; thus AK-1 would be the first piece listed under Alaska (if Alaska had issued any substitute currency for its prisons).

The first listing of each issuing institution contains the name of the prison in boldface type. Each listing subsequent to that should be considered form the same prison until another prison of issue is listed.

Where known, each piece is cataloged with its denomination, size, shape, color (on paper and plastic items) and compositions. Major obverse and reverse design details are listed with the exonomia cataloging convention of a slash mark being used to indicate at which points the lettering changes lines on a particular piece. No attempt has been made to indicate each dot, flourish, fancy background (on paper items), etc., especially where the item is illustrated.

Many prison token collectors also look for related items pertaining to the correctional field. Examples are this badge from the American Prison Association congress in Toronto in 1929. Also collected are prison guard uniforms and badges or even individual uniform buttons.

The rarity scale by which each piece is rated has been arrived at by the author on the basis of many years of collecting in this field and in conjunction with input from other collectors of prison tokens.

Items are rarity-rated on a three-tier system determined by the number known to be in the hands of the TAMS members who contributed to this catalog. The classifications are: Rare, Scarce, Common.

No attempt has been made to price the cataloged items. Many of them are so rare that they seldom appear in the mail bid sales or on the bourse tables. Also, there are so few specialists in this field that the most common method of token acquisition among them is trading. In spite of limited supply and demand, interest in this series is definitely on the upswing, with many exonomists now trying to break into the field of prison tokens. Even the most common items sell for $1 or more, with the most in the $3-6 range and some of the older, rarest tokens bringing $50 and more at auctions.

SPECIAL NOTE

Since there are no known specimens from certain states of any prison exonomia in the hands of collectors, these states have not been included in this catalog. To the best of our knowledge any state not listed is because there are no known tokens scrip, etc. known to exist. Also, if the state is listed, but not a particular institution, there is no known substitute to exist at that particular institution.

An unusual exonomia item depicting the Wisconsin State Penitentiary is this advertising mirror from Waupun, where the prison is located.

To make it easier to use this catalog as a check list, there will be (brackets) before each token or item so that you will be able to see readily just by looking at the catalog whether you have the item or not.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

In the nearly five years that this catalog has been in the works, a great number of persons within and outside of the hobby have made significant contributions. Special thanks is due the many persons in the corrections business who assisted by answering inquiries, along with the many inmates who have taken the time to respond to the many questions put forth to them. Let us not forget our fellow collectors whom we single out for their assistance in providing lists and rubbings of their prison holdings, specimens to be photographed and updated information: Thomas Casper, R.W. Colbert, Robert Gantner, Charles Carter, Agnar Wahlberg, Clarence Symes, Ford Knight, David Freed, Herman Aqua, Lloyd Wagaman, Harry English, T.H. Robinson, Kurt Krueger, Kendall Ballard, Tom Hitt, F.S. Montgomery, Dave Mullins, Max Studley, George Van Trump, Herb Zilber, and the many others to whom we are very grateful. Our special appreciation to Jack F. Burns for his pioneer work in this field when he was on the staff of Carnegie Museum, Pittsburgh, Pa.

NOTE: These tokens were manufactured in May 1967 by H.E. Mason & Co., Chicago, Ill., and were issued to inmates in exchange for their blood. An inmate would receive $4.00 for his use; and $1.00 would be put into his savings account. For each pint of plasma donated the Blood Bank would return $1.50 to the Vocational School located at the penitentiary.

Some collectors have reported the possible mintage of the $1.00 denomination, but to date none have turned up, and it is my belief that none were ever minted.

NOTE: These coupons came in books of $1, $2, $3, and $5. They were manufactured by Weldon, Williams & Lich., Ft. Smith, Ark. They were used by the farms and camps only, as the Main Prison at Santa Fe uses an accounting systems (paper). Inmates from the farms and camps ordered their supplies from the Main prison.

NEW YORK

- () NY-1 SING-SING PRISON. One cent, 19mm, rd, br. Obv: One in circle at center; SING SING above, PRISON, below; daisy like pattern at each side. Rev: MWL (Mutual Welfare League, inmates' organization) in central circle; motto DO GOOD above, MAKE GOOD below, daisy design at each side. (Common)
- () NY-2 Five cents, 21mm, rd, br, design similar to NY-1. (Common)

- () NY-3 Five cents, 21mm, rd, al, design similar to NY-1. (Scarce)
- () NY-4 Ten cents, 17mm, rd, al, design similar to NY-1, (Common)
- () NY-5 Twenty-five cents, 24mm, rd, al, design similar to NY-1. (Scarce)
- () NY-6 Twenty-five cents, (variety in "Y" of twenty) 24mm, rd, al, design similar to NY-1 except for variety in script "Y". (Rare)
- () NY-7 Fifty cents, 35mm, rd, al, design similar to NY-1, (Scarce)

NOTE: There was a second striking of tokens accounting for the aluminum 5, and the variety of the twenty-five. Evidently these two denominations were of demand calling for more to be minted; the five was produced in aluminum; and an error was found in the "y" in the twenty script striking. In a book authored by Mr. Thomas Mott Osborne, warden at the time MWL was founded, he mentions the initial set of tokens consisting of in brass the one and five; and in aluminum, the ten, twenty-five and fifty.

- () NOTE: There is a possibility that there is a variety of the 50¢ as well as the 25¢, but unconfirmed.

- () NY-8 One dollar, 181mm X 78mm, paper note, orange and black printing on white. Obv: Mutual Welfare League and logo at center, denomination at upper corners. SING SING PRISON at bottom center. Series designation and serial number at upper right. Rev: Blank. (Rare)

NOTE: Back of this specimen carries sentimental message between inmates. "With love to Abner, R.H. Browne your pal." W.J. Duggan signature at right may be endorsement of inmate to whom the note was originally issued.

- () NY-9 Five dollars, 181mm X 78mm, paper note, brown and black lettering on white, design similar to NY-8. (Rare)
- () NY-10 Ten dollars, 181mm X 78mm, paper note, blue and black lettering on white. (Rare)

NOTE: I have in my possession a letter from W.E. Snyder, dated July 20th, 1945, who was warden at that time stating: "Paper currency was also issued in the denomination of one, five, ten and twenty dollars." To the best of my knowledge twenty dollar note are non-existent, I have to believe that this letter is in error as I have a book authored by Mr. Snyder, in which he discusses the MWL, and yet there is no mention of the twenty dollar note.

NOTE: In spring of 1977, a crisp uncirculated set of the Sing Sing $1, $5, and $10 notes was offered in Paul Cunningham's Mail Bid exnumia auction where it sold for $120.

- () NY-14 Fifty cents, 31mm, rd, al, design similar to NY-11. (Rare)

NOTE: Specimens of NY-11 thru NY-14 have also been known to exist with a "V" counterstamp. The "V" has shown up on either the obverse or reverse; no special reason. The counterstamp was definitely used to remove the token from use; however there are two ideas of the meaning "V". One is that the "V" stands for void; while the second meaning that the "V" stood for "Valentine"; the police commissioner at the time the tokens were removed from circulation. The tokens were put into effect in early 1927.

TENNESSEE

NOTE: From my recent letters from inmates of different institutions in Tennessee I have found out that they, unlike other prisons, utilize different types of currency at different prisons branches, the type used being left up to the individual in charge at that particular institution. Some use tokens, some scrip (paper), some use paper for the accounting system, while others may use "free world" money. Where free money is used there may be a stipulation as to the maximum amount allowed at one time. Example: one states that one dollar is the maximum, while others report that they may carry up to $55.00. All free money carried or allowed must be in change, no larger than a quarter (bills are not allowed).

TEXAS

NOTE: The state of Texas would be too lengthy to list individually by series as to date there are fifty (50) series. There are basically two different types of tickets, or coupons with four different signatures on the reverse. To discourage counterfeiting the series and color combination are changed at least once a year.

Today the books are issued in the $1, $5, $10, $20 and $30 amounts; earlier they came in $1, $2, $5, and $6 books.

JUNIOR REPUBLICS

NOTE: Very little information about the Junior Republics is known among the token collecting fraternity. It is believed that they were some type of reformatory or at least home for youths in the late 19th-20th Century. Whatever their actual nature, the token currency issued by them served much the same function as prison exonomia and is collected along with prison tokens by many.

NOTE: GJR-12 thru GJR-18 (excluding GJR-12) were issued as a set for their anniversary.

NOTE: In researching my correspondence of over ten years accumulation I have come to the following conclusion of the George Junior Republic. They were organized in 1895 and started off with some cardboard scrip, which didn't last long, then in 1896 they came out with a set 1¢ thru $1.00, but it was made of tin and incused not too good looking and it wasn't too satisfactory. Then in 1900 they came out with their first set of aluminum tokens, which seemed to fit the bill, and they were used until 1907 when another set came out, this being octagonal while the 1900 set was round. The next set was dated 1910. By this time problems had arisen and they were being misused so an arrow was stamped on the various sets and dates, which were used while the others became obsolete, which accounts for the large number of them around. They also took the 1910 set and overprinted 1911 on it, and this was used until their 50th anniversary set of goldene in 1945 (marked as 1946). Also in 1945 they came out with paper bills of $1.00, $5.00 and $10.00 denominations.

MISCELLANEOUS

IOWA STATE HOSPITAL AND SCHOOL.

NOTE: There is some doubt as to whether or not the tokens of the Glenwood (Iowa) State Hospital and School fall under the heading of Prison Tokens. A check with the local telephone operator revealed that it was her understanding that the Glenwood Institution operated more or less as an indigent hospital and orphanage rather than a place of incarceration. However, since there has evidently been a recently released small hoard of these tokens, they will be listed here for the benefit of collectors.

- () MSC-16 THE PRISON RODEO OF TEXAS. This note is 175mm X 78mm, lettering and design is in black and green ink on white background. The Texas institution each week puts on a rodeo for the public. The performers are inmates, both male and female. The male will ride the broncos etc., while the female inmates will do things like chase and catch greased pigs. There is a souvenir program which is a nice item for gathering information. This particular note is a series 1966 from that year, and is a souvenir of the rodeo. Money gained from the rodeo after expenses go to the recreation fund for the inmates.
